A well-known Offaly priest is set to chat with RTÉ presenter Ryan Tubridy on The Late Late Show very soon.

Fr Sean Hyland lives in his hometown of Portarlinton but is a curate in Offaly in the communities of Clonbullogue and Rhode.

He launched his own book 'Whisperings of my Soul' in December last year. According to Fr Sean, he is going to be talking about his book on the popular Friday night show on March 8.

I had the privilege of working with Fr Sean Hyland on his bestselling book, Whisperings of My Soul, in 2018.

Fr Sean, the curate for two parishes in County Offaly, felt compelled to write this story to inspire others suffering from the terrible pain of loss and grief that he experienced in his early life as a husband, father and successful businessman.

Possessing a large manuscript when I met him, we worked on editing down the huge amount of work he had created. We also added new chapters about his incredible life story.

Published with Orla Kelly Self-Publishing services in Cork, this remarkable book garnered significant media attention, and he quickly landed a book distribution deal.

His book entered the top 5 bestseller list in Ireland. Whisperings also became the number one bestseller in Veritas nationwide stores throughout 2019. It remains on Veritas bestselling lists today and continues to sell in large numbers nationwide. Fr Sean promoted his book on the Late Late Show in early 2019.
